5. The company constitution

Chapter: (p. 95) 5. The company constitution

Author(s): Brenda Hannigan

DOI: 10.1093/he/9780198787709.003.0005

This chapter focuses on the company constitution. Every company is required to have articles of association. Model forms of articles are provided for public and private companies limited by shares, and any company may adopt all or any of the provisions of the relevant model articles for that type of company. The remainder of the chapter covers the content of the articles, amending the articles, interpreting the articles, enforcing the articles, and shareholders' agreements.

Access to the complete content on Law Trove requires a subscription or purchase. Public users are able to search the site and view the abstracts and keywords for each book and chapter without a subscription.

Please subscribe or login to access full text content.
5. The company constitution

If you have purchased a print title that contains an access code, please see the information provided with the code or instructions printed within the title for information about how to register your code.

For questions on access or troubleshooting, please check our FAQs, and if you can't find the answer there, please contact us.