This chapter examines the institution of local government. The discussions cover localism, tradition, and the ‘modernisation’ of local government; local government’s constitutional status in the early-twentieth century; the fiscal autonomy of local government; the role of the judiciary; council housing; grant penalties and ratecapping; collective politics and individual rights; the abolition of the Greater London Council and metropolitan counties; privatising local government; and the Blair government’s reforms.
10. Local Government

Please subscribe or login to access full text content.

If you have purchased a print title that contains an access code, please see the information provided with the code or instructions printed within the title for information about how to register your code.

For questions on access or troubleshooting, please check our FAQs, and if you can't find the answer there, please contact us.