This chapter focuses on the supremacy of European Union (EU) law over the law of the member states and the relationship with international law. It suggests that the reasons and logic for the supremacy of the EU law have been developed through the decisions and interpretation of the European Court of Justice (CoJ) and provides relevant cases to illustrate the views of the CoJ on the superiority of EU law. This chapter also describes the reception and implementation of EU law in several member states, including the UK, but now in the light of Brexit, Germany, Italy, France, the Czech Republic, Denmark, and Spain.
