This chapter discusses the procedure for obtaining a divorce or dissolving a civil partnership, which is governed by the Family Procedure Rules 2010. It outlines the main steps a solicitor should take before issuing divorce proceedings and explores the complete procedure for obtaining an undefended divorce. It explains that the procedure for divorce is governed by the Family Procedure Rules (FPR) 2010, which came into force in 2011. The FPR refers to ‘matrimonial orders’ which includes a decree of divorce, a decree of nullity, and a decree of judicial separation. Service of the petition is also discussed, as well as the various forms used.
